Investor Profile Quiz

It's your strategy. You decide where to invest contributions to your retirement savings plan account from the options available to you. Your retirement goals, savings rate, available income assets, and your investor profile are all a part of determining your asset allocation. This worksheet will help you understand the type of investor you are. Your score is one tool you can use in deciding which investment choices may best suit your needs.

Step 1: What Type of Investor Are You?

Step 3: Determine The Asset Allocation That's Right For You

To plan the mix that's best for you, you'll want to consider your investor profile (aggressive, moderate, or conservative) and how long you have to invest (time horizon).

Your employer's retirement savings plan offers you investment choices from one or more of these basic categories:

Cash/stable value - Cash investments (money market securities) offer the lowest potential return of the basic categories but carry the least risk of losing your invested money. Stable value investments (guaranteed investment contracts) offer low risk and returns that historically have been at, or slightly above, inflation.

Bonds (fixed income) - generally offer a moderate potential return but carry less risk of loss than stocks.

Stocks (equities) - generally offer the highest potential return but carry the greatest risk of losing the money you have invested

Look at the allocation examples below. Then write down a tentative plan for dividing up your retirement investments. As you make your allocation decision, be sure you consider all factors, including your other assets, income, and investments, in addition to the balance in this plan.
